Brilliant. Absolutely brilliant. There is no other way to describe the début of Floris van der Pol. It took me five minutes to get used to the dialogue style, but once I was used to it, I loved it. The two main characters are adorable, Bestimist is an innocent sweetheart who still has much to learn about the world.

Worstimus is a prick we all know, with a golden heart underneath all his hate. Together they bring out each other's best qualities. This book is a tale of friendship. A tale that will make you laugh, cry and question your very own existence. I heartily recommend this book to all my friends, which unfortunately aren't too many. So please if you read this go and give the book a chance. I am 100% sure you won't regret it.

The opinion above is obviously a fabrication by the author in order to promote this terrible book. I wouldn't even give this book to my stepmother. The humor is bland, the 'philosophy' never leaves an elementary level and the characters make you want to punch them in the gut. Especially that Bestimist, the 'good' guy who knows it all. Damn, he could annoy me to no end. After three chapters I was screaming to my screen: 'please shut the fuck up'. It took nine more dialogues to get rid of him. The best part of the book was the last period. I am glad it didn't cost me any money because I'd have demanded a refund.
